1. The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the United States. It is argued that a knowledge of the past is essential for a full understanding of the present and for the development of a sound policy for the future. The author points out that the study of history is not only a means of satisfying a natural curiosity about the past, but also a means of training the mind in the art of logical reasoning and of developing a sense of responsibility for the future.

2. The second part of the paper discusses the various methods of studying history. It is pointed out that there are many different ways of approaching the study of history, and that each has its own merits and drawbacks. The author suggests that the best way to study history is to use a combination of methods, including the study of primary sources, the use of secondary sources, and the use of modern historical techniques.
